5. Would you like to see a creative crosswalk incorporated at the new Brookhaven City Hall? (Please see the survey responses that stood out the most.)

- Yes! This adds an element of creativity!
- I would not like to see this in Brookhaven City Hall because I feel like it could result in drivers getting into danger with all the colors. For example, they might be looking at the art and get into a crash.
- I would love to have a colorful cross walk at city hall because it would attract many people and it would feel welcoming. Most people feel happy or more emotionally well after being in a colorful place.
- I think it depends on the building design and overall ascetic you chose to go with. If the goal is to make a kid and family friendly area, then yes. But personally, i think it should be a little more serious for business area.

- 6. How would you utilize 5,000 square feet of open public space? (5,000 square feet is equivalent to two tennis courts.)
- a. Covered and open seating with tables, possibly an amphitheater, markers which share the history and prehistory of the city
 - b. An open area with tables to sit where you could meet with business or personal people in outside space. Also, a covered section in case weather is too hot or too cold. Heaters provided Or air conditioner
 - c. I would leave it open but make the ground turf. Then once a week have a bunch of food trucks and a live band and people can like come and visit and its like a mini concert but its 10 dollars per person and you must buy a ticket! I feel like you could get more use from an open field than new building and that kind of stuff.
 - d. I would make some type of an interactive outdoor museum. This would be so much fun and not only attract people from outside of Atlanta but also locals who have a boring weekend and looking for something to do.
 - e. I would make a portion of an outdoor. Lots of tree and place to sit and enjoy nature. I would make the area to play basketball or another sport.
- 7. Designing a place for everyone starts with an emphasis on social equity, connectivity to nature, and an obligation to care for the inhabitants of the building. Using air quality, water, light, ease of movement, and inclusivity, we design our buildings from a people-centered and community-focused approach to enhance the well-being of the people in Brookhaven. How can a building provide health and happiness for its occupants and the surrounding community?
- a. For occupants, well-lit offices and workspace with windows, snatch market with hot/cold healthy food options, restrooms with ample stalls, no-touch options for doors, faucets, etc. For the community, ample parking, clear directories, auditorium/ballroom with floating walls that can accommodate up to 500 people but as few as 20 with discounted rates for residents
 - b. Please make something interactive at city hall! It would be so fun!! :)
 - c. I would love to see more bakeries and pop-up markets.
 - d. Brookhaven needs more outdoor actives. We need to make Brookhaven more comfortable for the people that visit.
